

Military Pay Raises Okayed by Committee

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Armed Services Committee approved today a $669,370,000 pay raise for members of the armed forces.

It acted over the protests of some members who demanded more time to study the measure. The committee approved the bill by a 29-0 vote after rejecting a motion to delay action until next Tuesday.

Committee Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) said the measure will be called up in the House Monday. The bill is an outgrowth of an incentive pay plan proposed in the so-called Cordell report. The plan was considerably modified by an armed services subcommittee. The measure would set up a system of proficiency pay and would give salary hikes to most officers and enlisted men except those in the lower grades.

Argentine President Delays U. S. Visit

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UP) — President-elect Arturo Frondizi said today he will be unable to visit the United States before his inauguration May 1, but added that he hopes to visit this country later.

Frondizi plans to visit Brazil, Chile and Uruguay before he takes office. He said time will not permit him to accept an invitation from President Eisenhower to extend his tour to the United States.

He said he is looking forward to a talk with Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who will come here to attend the inauguration.

Feeder Calf Sale Approved by Cattlemen

The desire to organize and hold a feeder calf sale here this fall was heartily approved by the beef cattlemen in a planning meeting at the Hempstead County Courthouse last night. Plans for a progress meeting to be held on Friday evening, March 28, at 7:30 at the Hope City Hall, Municipal Courtroom were made.

The plan of organization and scope of operation of the 13 feeder calf organizations holding sales in Arkansas during 1957 and 1958 was reviewed by Hempstead County Agent Oliver L. Adams.

Mr. Adams said the sales operating in Arkansas are all operated by local producers associations in cooperation with the Arkansas Beef Cattlemen's Council and the Arkansas Agricultural Extension Service. In 1957, 10,497 head of feeder cattle were marketed through the farmer sales going to 13 states.

The plan of operation considered by the cattlemen meeting last evening involved moving the cattle directly from producers to buyers. The animals are trucked direct from farms and ranches to the sale pens where they are tagged and weighed. They are sorted into uniform lots according to breed, sex, quality, weight and condition under the supervision of the Arkansas Agricultural Extension Service. Cattle are sold at auction by the pound in uniform groups of from 5 to 20 head.

John J. Wilson of Columbus told the group that for three years he had marketed 20 or more head each fall through the Southwest Arkansas Feeder Cattle Producers Association at Texarkana and at this time he had 40 head pledged for the September 2 sale. He reported his net selling price 3 to 5 cents per pound above regular market.

Other producers interested in placing feeder calves in the proposed sale at Hope this fall and who should be contacted by interested cattlemen of the area who might have 5 or more head of cattle for sale include C. P. Jones, Loys Hampton, Lee Norton, Jesse Duckett, William Schooley, R. B. Garrett, Claude Sutton and W. L. Williams.

Winners of district contests are ineligible to compete for district prizes for three years; however, they can compete against other previous district winners.

The judging team, for the sweepstakes contest, will consist of Miss Iris Davenport, representing the Progressive Farmer; J. V. Sneed, Arkansas Chamber of Commerce; and Johnnie Holmes of the Arkansas Daily Association.

These judges will hear oral reports from the McCaskill RCI of districts and committee chairmen beginning at 10:30 a. m. This will be followed by a luncheon at the McCaskill community center at noon with the judges being taken on a tour of the community in the afternoon.

At a meeting of the McCaskill RCI club last Friday night, Arthur Winnell was elected president to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. Sanders Moses who had served as president over since the club was organized six years ago. House Likely to Block Plan to Shave Supports WASHINGTON (UP) — The House was expected to pass legislation today aimed at blocking plans of Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson to cut farm price supports and planting allotments.

Democratic leaders claimed the move would help in the fight against recession. They said Benson's scheduled price and planting reductions would cut farmers' income by a half billion dollars this year.

The resolution would cancel pending slashes in support prices for milk and butterfat and nine other farm commodities. It would also wipe out reductions expected next year in planting allotments for cotton and other crops.

Some foes of the measure said it would wreck Benson's promise of lower priced milk and butter starting April 1, when lower dairy price supports were scheduled to take effect.

Others said it would actually hurt taxpayers by driving up the cost of the farm program. And still others said the move would "dangerously" disrupt the farm program and thus hurt farmers themselves.

Benson has all but said publicly that President Eisenhower would veto the resolution if it's approved by the House.

Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) of the House legislative oversight subcommittee said his group will study more television decisions by the Federal Communications Commission to look for possible "White House influence."

The Senate Rackets Committee today began hearings on a union-backed boycott of plumbing products made by the strike-bound Kohler Co. of Wisconsin.

Other congressional news:
Housing: The House completed congressional action on a $1,850,000,000 "Democratic" sponsored housing bill, designed to create 500,000 jobs by encouraging construction of 200,000 more homes this year.

President Eisenhower was expected to sign the measure, even though the administration doesn't care for some of its financial features.

Resolutions: The House passed by lopsided votes two Democratic resolutions calling on President Eisenhower to speed up construction of public works to provide more jobs for the unemployed. At the same time, Speaker Sam Rayburn accused Eisenhower of wishful thinking about the economy.

He said the President seemed to think "everything is all right," but "we heard a lot of that kind of talk in 1929, 1932 and 1933."

Space: Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, director of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, said the United States may try to launch an earth satellite which could expand to 100 feet in diameter. A House appropriations subcommittee released testimony given by Dryden Feb. 18 in which he disclosed that U. S. scientists are giving "serious interest" to putting up a "balloonlike moon" that size.

Foreign Aid: Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the United States is in a long arms race with Russia and victory may fall to the side with the greatest staying power.

House of Confessed Slayer Is Burned

PLAINFIELD, Wis. (UP) — Confessed butcher-slayer Ed Gein's unoccupied "House of Horrors" burned to the ground today.

State fire officials were called in to help local authorities investigate the possibility of arson.

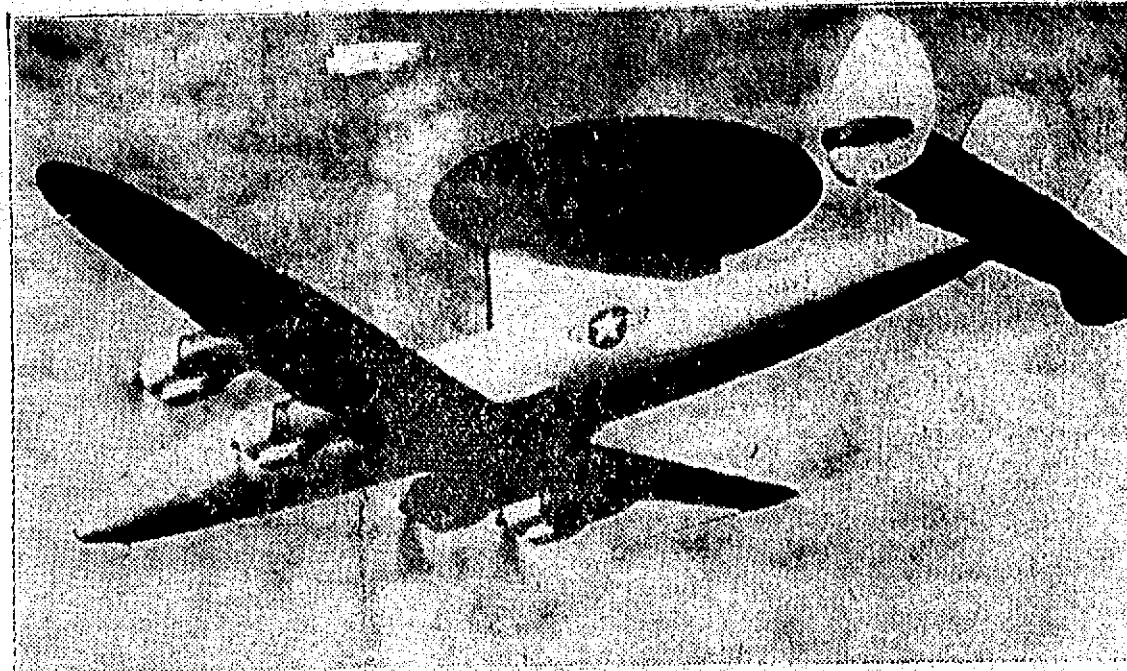

Deputy State Fire Marshal John Hassler, Wausau, joined Wausau County Sheriff Art Schley, Wausau, in conducting the investigation at the scene of the large two-story frame farm home near here.

Schley said firemen told him the blaze apparently started in the west end of the building at a point near the outside dogbox where the body of one of Gein's victims was found.

He said the intensity of the fire and poor weather conditions prevented an immediate investigation of the charred ruins. It was snowing at the time.

The fire had an awful start before it got there, he said. "I did not know what the deal was, so I called in the fire marshal to take over."

The house was to have been sold at auction Palm Sunday.

Confession of Slayer Read in Court

MALVERN (UP) — A confession by a Georgia hitchhiker accused of fatally shooting a 42-year-old Hot Springs man was read in circuit court here today.

Prosecutor H. E. Means, with consent of Circuit Judge Ernest Manner, read the confession given by Lamar House, charged with first degree murder in the death of Ray Woodall, 42, an Army-Navy hospital employee.

Manner ruled Wednesday that the jury composed of eight men and four women could hear the confession. Attorneys had argued whether or not House had been promised leniency if he would sign the confession.

House's attorneys contended that Deputy Sheriff E. O. Cooper had told House that the people of Hot Springs county were merciful and he never knew of a person's being executed after trial in the county.

After Confession
Cooper testified today that he made the statements to Hogue after the confession had been given. He said he was offering the defendant "spiritual rather than material" help. Cooper said he was alone with Hogue when he made the statement.

25 Persons Perish in Garment Plant Fire in New York

By BARBARA BUNDSCHU
United Press Staff Correspondent
New York (UP) — At least one more person may be added today to the list of 24 men and women who met death Wednesday night in a flame-swept garment factory on lower Broadway.

Firemen searched the charred remains of the building for a garment worker reported missing. They feared they may find his and possibly other bodies in the ruins of the building where 18 women and six men died in an hour of screaming horror.

Fifteen persons were injured in the holocaust. The fire death toll was the city's worst in 12 years.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner and Fire Commissioner Edward J. Cavanaugh met at city hall to discuss ways of tightening laws to protect workers from fire in the teeming jungle of old commercial buildings in lower Manhattan.

Wagner was reported "fighting mad" over the tragedy. Cavanaugh subpoenaed for questioning about 30 persons connected with the management of the building, although he said a preliminary check indicated the building was run in compliance with existing fire and safety laws.

Gov. Averell Harriman ordered the state Labor Department to make a thorough investigation of the tragedy.

Wednesday night's tragic blaze was just two blocks from the gutted shell of a building in which six firemen and four civilians died last month, only four blocks from the site of the famous "Triangle Shirtwaist" fire, which took 147 lives in 1911 and led to drastic revision of then-existing fire laws.

Two-thirds of the workers in the fourth-floor garment plant died in the fire.

Four women leaped from the fourth floor Monarch Underwear Co. factory to firemen's nets. Others were led or carried down firemen's ladders. Only a few reached safely down the fire stairway, which remained intact throughout the blaze.

The fire broke out in the floor below the garment factory when a gas oven used to dry freshly-printed textiles exploded as it was lit. Three nearby workers made brief but unsuccessful efforts to halt the flames and then fled down the fire stairs.

Fire leaped to the ceiling beneath the underwear factory.

Fire Commissioner Edward J. Cavanaugh Jr. said both floors were "blowing when the first company reached the scene."

Survivors told of panic, screaming and confused running about as smoke and then flames burst through the floor.

"Abe Becker, my boss, drove a window open," survivor, Mrs. Anna Bailey, 20, said. "I don't know what happened to him."

"You all get out," Becker told his workers. "I'll be the last to leave."

He said the cost of the 1957 ex-ordinarily session was "only $18,078."

"Surely, this is not too high a price to pay for the preservation of the independence and integrity of the Arkansas unemployment compensation program," Windsor said.

Windsor said the Arkansas State Chamber of Commerce and Associated Industries of Arkansas, Inc., have publicly opposed any plan involving federal grants or loans for the purpose of having extended unemployment benefits.

"They correctly view this as the immediate prelude to federalization of the present state unemployment compensation systems," Windsor said.

leave."

But he was unable to persuade the hysterical workers to brave the hot smoke in the dark stairway. He was found dead with them, near the door.

One man and one woman amazingly were found alive when firemen were finally able to enter the gutted garment shop more than two hours after the blaze started.

The woman had jumped into a metal storage box. Cavanaugh said the box would normally have been like an oven, quickly roasting anyone inside it. He surmised that water which poured through the factory's windows in heavy streams had kept it cool enough for perious survival.

Cavanaugh was at the scene of the blaze shortly after the second of five alarms was sounded. He said the building appeared to have been free of fire law violations, but that the entire neighborhood "stinks in fire prevention" and is full of "hazardously poor housing," which the fire department, he said, is presently powerless to correct.

Cites Need of Water in State Areas

By LLOYD HOLBECK
United Press Staff Correspondent

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—An estimated 100,000 acres of the Grand Prairie Bayou Metro area, centered by Stuttgart, is "seriously affected" with a water shortage, the U.S. Army District Engineer at Vicksburg said here today.

Col. Milton Barschdorf was one of the speakers at a conference of the Arkansas, White, Red River Basins Interagency Committee. The group had visited the Bayou Metro area Wednesday.

Barschdorf said the region is faced with a serious problem in regard to the underground water supply.

He explained water demands for rice production have exhausted artesian wells, and the natural recharge rate of the underground water is about one third of the yearly demand.

Engineer's Review

Barschdorf said the engineers were reviewing improvements of the area. So far, their studies indicate a flood control plan is basically sound, but more work has to be done on the possibility of recharging the underground water supply by pumping water back into the ground.

"The area most seriously affected is centered around Stuttgart, and comprises some 100,000 acres," he said. "The economy of this area is based primarily upon the cultivation of rice, and further extensive lowering of the ground water supply would seriously jeopardize the continuation of this major enterprise."

He said protection of the area from Mississippi Arkansas river overflow by means of the levee system has been authorized and is now nearing completion.

"Like Topsy, the Grand Prairie Bayou Metro just grew," said Roy Wood, a member of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, from the Atlanta, Ga. area.

"But in our haste to do our job, let's not forget and commit the natural resources of this or any other region to a single segment of our economy. Let's help maintain, not destroy the actual balance which has been achieved," Wood said.

He outlined the growth of agriculture and hunting in the area. He said as many as a million birds have been observed in periods of favorable high water. He said sport and commercial fisheries are by no means a minor resource of the region.

Due Application

A third speaker, William B. Davey, U.S. Department of Agriculture conservationist, said there has been only one watershed application from the area submitted to the Arkansas Geological and Conservation Commission.

He said the application covers 131,000 acres. It has been labeled the Upper Bayou Metro Watershed and is aimed at improving fish and wildlife habitat and providing recreational facilities.

W. M. Apple, of Little Rock president of the Arkansas Wildlife Federation, said no one knows how much money hunting in the area has brought in.

"I am certain that the figures millions and millions of dollars, without accounting for the huge sums that are left by our non-resident visitors," Apple said.

Background Outlined

H. Holder of the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission, outlined background of the Commission's buying the Bayou Metro Game Restoration project.

He said the commission so far has bought 33,512 acres of land at a cost of $337,150. The commission has spent another $159,820 on approximately 8,000 acres of duck hunting impoundments.

"The project... is without a doubt the finest game restoration project of any state game and fish commission in the entire United States."

Tom Mull, commission director of information, gave a brief history on how hunting developed in the area. He said in early days farmers walked nights through their shocked rice shooting their guns to frighten the ducks away. "Now, that section of Arkansas is the duck capital of the world, and the revenue derived from the ducks is fabulous," he said.

Urges Help in Certain Sections

WASHINGTON (UP)—Four governors today urged Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy to place more defense contracts in areas with high unemployment.

They also protested against the administration's proposed 10 percent cut in National Guard strength, now 400,000 officers and men.

Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois later declined to tell reporters whether McElroy gave the governors any satisfaction. However, Stratton did say that McElroy promised to advise governors in advance before the administration reaches any decision on changing policies about the guard.

McElroy is scheduled to address the annual meeting of the Governors' Conference in Miami, Fla., May 18.

The governors conferred with McElroy at the White House, but President Eisenhower did not sit in.

Governors in addition to Stratton were Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Albert D. Rosellini of Washington, and Joseph B. Johnson of Vermont. They are members of the executive committee of the Governors' Conference which conferred with Eisenhower Wednesday on extending the period of payment of unemployment compensation benefits.

Main Democrats Start Campaign

AUGUSTA, Maine (UP) Gov. Edmund S. Muskie, who in 1954 led Maine's Democratic Party out of the political wilderness, today began campaigning for nomination to the U.S. Senate.

Announcement Wednesday night by Muskie, 43, that he would enter the June 16 primaries ended speculation that he might retire to private life.

In 1954 Muskie was elected Maine's first Democratic governor in winning re-election two years ago.

Muskie seeks the Senate seat now held by Republican Sen. Frederick C. Payne.

Terror Tale Told by the Survivors

By ALBERT McCOLLUGH

NEW YORK (UP)—Explosion, smoke, darkness and terror—those were the experiences buffed into the memories of workers who survived Wednesday's disastrous Monarch Underwear Co. factory fire.

"The screams of the living and shrieks of the dying sounded the first alarm. They still rang today in the minds of survivors and witnesses."

"Everybody was screaming," Mrs. Anna Bailey, 20, Monarch employee hospitalized for severe smoke inhalation and cuts and bruises, recalled.

"We were working when all of a sudden we heard a bang," she said. "We all ran. And everybody was screaming—Smoke and fire. They were screaming. We didn't know which way to turn, with so much smoke. There was no air in the place. We saw the fire people trying to break windows screaming 'Help! Help! Fire! Fire!'"

Some were trapped, some of the women later jumped through broken fourth-floor windows, were the first alarm heard by firemen of Engine Company 13 less than a block from the burning five-story loft building.

"We were all sitting around when suddenly there came these terrified shrieks," fireman John P. Nerney said. "Everyone in the station house heard them."

Nerney said he ran to the scene and begged several women not to jump from a fourth-floor ledge where they huddled in terror. Other firemen arrived with nets and Nerney then cried "Jump—one at a time." Four women leaped and one bounced against Nerney, injuring his arm.

One young survivor told hysterically of trying to find her way out through billows of smoke. She did not know that many of her fellow workers had died, and doctors warned interviewers not to tell her.

She was Mrs. Dolores Coleman, 17, hospitalized at Bellevue for smoke poisoning, hysteria and minor injuries.

"I tried to break open a window with a chair," Mrs. Coleman said. "I picked it up and threw it through the window but the smoke still kept us from seeing anything. Smoke came up and then the fire and we couldn't get to the door."

"The girls were screaming and carrying on. And the boss came and got us and marched us in the back, and then he got somebody to get us wet rags to put in front of our faces. He told us not to panic, but there was plenty of screaming. I tried to get down the stairs, but I couldn't get through, it was too dark and I was scared because of the screaming and hollering. The last thing I remember was everyone trying to push back."

The explosion, which occurred on the floor below the fourth-floor Monarch factory, shook the building so hard "I was lifted up—I kind of bounced," Mrs. Carmen Torres, 37, said. She was taken to Bellevue for treatment of smoke sickness and cuts and bruises.

"I thought the elevator had fallen down," Mrs. Torres said. "Then somebody yelled 'Fire.' My boss broke a window and I climbed through. Everybody was yelling, 'Carmen, don't jump, don't jump!'"

"I gasped for air. Then the fire ladder came up. I grabbed it and hung on like a monkey."

Winter May Slip in a Last Lick

By UNITED PRESS

Winter was expected to throw its Sunday punch at Arkansas before Spring sneaks in Thursday under the cover of darkness. Spring begins at 8:06 p.m. Thursday.

The forecast said it will be partly cloudy and cold this afternoon, tonight and Thursday, but Friday will be partly cloudy and "just a little warmer."

High today will be in the 40's to mid 50's low tonight in the mid 20's to mid 30's, and high Thursday in the mid 30's to high 50's.

The extended forecast, Wednesday through next Monday, said temperatures will average six to ten degrees below the normal maximum of 65 and the normal minimum of 44. It will continue cold during the period then a slow rising trend about the week-end. Little or no precipitation is expected.

The high in Arkansas Tuesday was 58 degrees at Dardanelle, the low today 21 at Gilbert.

At 11 a.m., skies were cloudy at Ft. Smith, partly cloudy at Fayetteville, and clear elsewhere in Arkansas and at Memphis. Ft. Smith had 38 degrees, Fayetteville 39, Walnut Ridge 43, Fort Smith 44, Pine Bluff and Little Rock 45, Memphis 46, El Dorado 48, and Texarkana 49.

DOROTHY DIX

Son's Affection Ends as Folks' Cash stops

Dear Dorothy Dix: Our only child is a son to whom we have given everything. While he was at college he fell in love and married. We continued paying his tuition, increased his allowance to provide for his wife. He graduates in June, then wants to continue for his master's degree, on the same terms of course. We feel this is asking too much of us, as we aren't wealthy at all. Since we refused his request, we haven't heard a word from them, though they used to write once a week, and call quite frequently. Should we reverse our decision?

MOTHER AND DAD
 Dear Parents: Your son and daughter-in-law have handed you your answer on a silver platter. They intend to be friendly and agreeable as long as you're handing out expense money. Suppose you continue to support them? There will inevitably come a time when you simply cannot hand out money in large quantities. This is when they change from warm to cold. Isn't it better that you face this fact now, instead of waiting until your small resources have been exhausted? Hang on to what you have; the handwriting on the wall foretells how much help you would get in a needy future. When your children have been on their own for a while, they will probably realize and appreciate how much the home folks have done for them and will give you the affection you've enriched.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband joined the service three weeks after our baby was born. He said he couldn't stand the crying. Now that she's a year old and quiet, he wants me to get him out of the service. He says if I tell a few lies I can do it. Should I?

BROWNIE
 Dear Brownie: Let Uncle Sam keep him an dmake a man of him. Besides, many have tried to get away with lying to the government but few have succeeded. Don't stick your neck out for a husband who needs a bit of discipline.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have two boy friends — one in service, one home. I was going steady with the soldier but broke off because I thought I preferred the other guy. Now I know different. How can I get the soldier back?

FLORIE
 Dear Florie: Write him a letter, tell him you made a mistake and regret it, that you'd like to resume steady dating. If he falls for it, you're lucky. If not, you'll just have to adjust to live without him.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a very mature girl of 17 and don't enjoy the company of people my own age. Since I attend high school and am still in the younger social groups, I never can get acquainted with older boys. Therefore, hardly ever date. How can I meet an older set?

BEATRICE
 Dear Beatrice: Be a sport. Date some of the boys your own age and maybe that will lead to older men. Wait too long and you'll be looking for younger ones; the mature men will all be taken. It doesn't pay to be too choosy!

High Taxes Can't Cure, Cheney Says

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Cheney said Tuesday night that Arkansas' economic ills can't be cured by raising taxes.

Cheney spoke to 46 members of the Pulaski County Auxiliary Mounted Police as they were presented emergency training certificates by Civil Defense Director Owen Payne Jr.

"Keeping taxes high — and that's where we can expect them to stay for a while, I'm afraid — won't put money in the pockets of the unemployed," said Cheney.

"What we've got to do is stop the exodus of people from Arkansas and get more people to share our tax load," he said.

Presley Fans Have No Need for Alarm

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (UP)—The Army assured Elvis Presley fans today that their hero's debut as a soldier will be fully publicized from blood tests to haircut.

The change from blue suede shoes to combat boots will be as fully documented as any other historical event.

Realistically admitting Pvt. Presley won't be "just another GI," the public information office here is preparing for his arrival on March 24 or 25 with enthusiasm usually reserved for approaching command inspections.

But "Operation Haircut" won't be the production one would expect. It seems Elvis accepted the inevitable and had his haircut at home in Memphis. His sideburns are gone.

However, the usual Army haircut and other induction ritual will be covered by the press.

Capt. Arlie Metheny, public information officer, said Tuesday a press center for visiting newsmen photographers and television crews is being established.

"We got loads of letters from girls," Metheny said, "who wanted us to save them a lock of Elvis' hair when he gets a GI haircut."

"I hated to disappoint them, but

U. S. to Lease Pine Bluff Plants

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The Little Rock District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Tuesday, the government will lease the Pine Bluff Arsenal's steam plant, chlorine plant and three of its warehouses.

Col. A. M. Jacoby, acting district engineer, said the facilities will be leased for periods up to 20 years. The chlorine plant has been leased for the last 10 years to the Diamond Alkali Co.

"We couldn't do it," he said.

"I issued a statement saying the plant will go in the trash with all the rest."

Attendance, Betting Off at Hot Springs

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—State Revenue J. Orville Cheney said Tuesday betting as well as attendance at Oaklawn Park is off this year in comparison to 1957.

Cheney said the state has collected $470,850.54 in taxes from the track so far this year. The total at the end of the same period last year was $535,277.50.

The figures do not include sales taxes, which are collected after the end of racing season March 20. Cheney predicted the total collected this year in taxes will be about $150,000 down from last year. He said the state used to collect breakage which went to Hot Springs, but now the track makes direct payments to that

Mena Man Killed in Truck Accident

MEMPHIS (UP)—Preston McGee, 45, of near Mena, died when his log truck overturned in a creek about 15 miles southeast of here Tuesday.

State Trooper Carroll Page said McGee's body was pinned beneath the truck, which was partly submerged in the water.

Spring and the state. The change in bookkeeping accounts for some of the decline in the taxes the state has collected, he said. The attendance at Oaklawn, through last Saturday, was 160,000, compared to 102,778 last season. A total of $7,000,000 was bet through Saturday, while last year $9,718,213 had been laid down.

CLABBER GIRL'S LUNCHEON

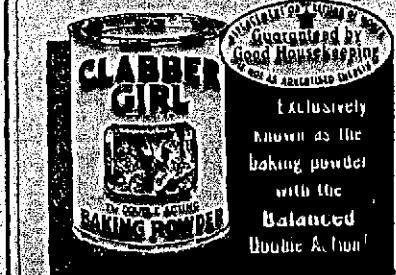

Corn Bread

Sift together 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons Clabber Girl Baking Powder, 3 tablespoons sugar, and 1 teaspoon salt. Blend in 1 cup yellow corn meal, 9 slices cooked crisp bacon, finely snipped, 3 tablespoons finely diced green pepper, and 3/4 cup chopped pimiento. Combine 1 egg, slightly beaten, with 1 cup milk, and 1/4 cup melted bacon fat, butter or margarine; add all at once to corn meal mixture and stir until dry ingredients are just dampened. Pour batter into a greased 8 x 8 x 2-inch baking pan. Bake in a 425° F. (hot) oven about 25 minutes. Serve hot, cut into serving pieces. Yield: 6 servings.

You should know THIS about baking!

It's the balance of ingredients in baking powder that governs its leavening action. Only when these are scientifically balanced can you be sure of uniform action in the mixing bowl plus that final balanced rise to light and fluffy texture in the oven. That's the story of Clabber Girl's double action.

Balanced Double Action means Better Baking!

Snow Flurries as Spring Approaches

By UNITED PRESS

Winter dragged its heels into its last full day today, kicking up token snow flurries and rain, but apparently wearied by its severe exertions during the past three months.

The arrival of spring Thursday at 9:06 p.m., e.s.t., gave winter the better part of the day to prepare its unannounced leave-taking. But there would be no flowers—winter itself had taken care of that by holding back nature's calendar about two weeks.

Fading winter strength was noted across the nation today as precipitation dwindled, to widely scattered snow flurries and showers.

The U. S. Weather Bureau noted that the sole exception to the weakening trend was a disturbance along the Atlantic Coast which caused rain in the lower tier of states and flurries farther north.

Cloudy skies were widespread from the Rockies to the Atlantic, with a few flurries in the mountains. Kansas, the Dakotas and the upper Great Lakes. West of the Rockies, fair skies prevailed except for spotty flurries in the extreme Northwest.

Crop Acreage Smallest in Many Years

WASHINGTON (UP)—U.S. crops this year probably will be grown on the smallest planted acreage in more than 40 years—but that is no cinch farm production will be reduced.

The Agriculture Department reported Tuesday on farmers' planting intentions as of March 1. It estimated this year's crop will be grown on about 333 million acres, almost one million acres under last year's planting. And last year's low acreage produced a crop which tied the record production of 1935 and 1948.

Production then was far off the output of 1937, 1931 and 1948.

Farmers have a way of increasing their fields on reduced acreage with better types of seed, improved fertilizer and all-around advances in agricultural technology. Also excellent moisture conditions are working for them in the Great Plains and parts of the West. A year ago these areas were in the process of recovering from long drought.

The department reported prospective corn plantings this year at 75,143,000 acres, up 1.6 per cent from last year. Under average yields this would produce a crop of 3,100,000,000 bushels. Smaller acreage last year produced 3,402,832,000 bushels.

Spring wheat planting may total 12,000,000 acres, up 1.6 per cent from last year. With average yields, some 171 million bushels would be produced. Last year however, slightly smaller plantings produced about 240 million bushels. The spring wheat crop, added to the previously estimated 906 million bushel winter wheat crop, would make an all-wheat crop of well over one billion bushels.

Oats acreage is expected to be 39,700,000 acres, 8 per cent less than last year.

Barley may be planted on 10 million acres, down 3 per cent from last year.

Soybean prospective acreage at 24 million is up 10 per cent from last year.

AF Will Put a Man Into Space

DAYTON, Ohio (UP)—Air Force missile expert Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever said Tuesday night the Air Force has been assigned to put a man into space and intends to do so.

"We have the facilities, the hardware and the know-how," Schriever said in a commencement address to students at the Air Force Institute of Technology, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Veterans in State Got $67 Million

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Arkansas veterans and their families received a total of $67,394,817 in cash benefits and services in fiscal 1937, the manager of the Little Rock veterans administration regional office said today.

A. H. Hammann, the manager, said compensation for service-connected disabilities and pensions for total and permanent non-service-connected disabilities were paid to 35,559 veterans. The payments totaled $30,821,782.

Dependents of 11,052 deceased veterans received death compensation and pensions totaling $3,801,043. Insurance and indemnity payments totaled $3,841,133.

Hammann said an average of 325 disabled veterans of World War I and the Korean conflict trained in Arkansas under the vocational rehabilitation act. They received $527,547 in subsistence, tuition, supplies and equipment.

An average of 5,399 veterans trained under World War II and Korean GI Bills. They received $6,623,437 in allowances.

The remainder of benefits and other VA expenditures in Arkansas totaled $14,779,285. Hammann said they included war orphans' educational allowances, hospitalization, administrative costs, and other items.

Work Orders on Highway Projects

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The Arkansas Highway Department issued work orders Tuesday on two projects in White and Crittenden counties costing a total of $715,451.

The White county job was awarded to Ben M. Hogan Co., of Little Rock at the Feb. 26 commission meeting on a low bid of $523,676.

The work consists of 11 miles of widening and resurfacing two bridges on the Bald Knob-Newport road, state highway 87. The work begins in Bald Knob and extends northeastward along the present location to the Jackson county line.

The Crittenden county contract was awarded at the Jan. 22 commission meeting to D. P. Jones Construction Co., Inc., of Little Rock on a low bid of $191,755.

The work involves construction of an interchange facility including one overpass structure on the Little Rock - Memphis interstate road. The project is 1.3 miles west of West Memphis and about one mile north of present highway 70.

Alcoa Gives State Colleges $1,500

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The Aluminum Company of America has presented the Arkansas Foundation of Associated Colleges a check for $1,500 to be divided among six of the seven members.

The announcement was made by Gen. Hugh Corl, USA (ret.) director of the Foundation.

He quoted a letter from Dr. O. C. McCreery of the Alcoa Foundation that only six of the member colleges were included in the grant because Alcoa makes a separate annual contribution to Harding College at Searcy.

Corl said this was the third year Alcoa has made such a grant to the privately-supported Arkansas colleges. It was part of $75,000 the Alcoa Foundation will distribute to 62 independent colleges this year.

Sharing in the grant are Arkansas College at Batesville, College of the Ozarks at Clarksville, Hendrix College at Conway, John Brown University at Siloam Springs, Ouachita Baptist College at Arkadelphia, and Southern Baptist College at Walnut Ridge.

FOLLOW THE INSTRUCTIONS LONDON (UP)—A public inquiry was held Tuesday into the reason why the roofs blew off 28 houses in a suburban development during a recent gale. The reason the builders testified was that no one told them the aluminum roofs needed to be nailed down.

First public weather service in America was established at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1869.

I was rushing into the entrance of our house when I heard the sudden step behind me, felt a big gun shoved in my right side. Then a heavy arm went around my neck, hugging my shoulder in a hard embrace and Mr. Wren was saying loudly, "No more talking, not that late. Come on, let's have a drink."

It was a good act even though nobody was around to see it; looked like a friendly greeting. His left arm casually around my shoulder while his right held the gun inside his coat pocket against my side. We were about the same height and I was looking smack into his eyes, eyes distorted by his thick glasses. At first I was so completely surprised seeing Wren—if anybody. I expected the Data clown—my mind was a blank. But one look at those eyes and I got scared, but fast.

According to the Police Manual I should have gone for my gun. There wasn't any crowd or by stands to stop a wild shot. Even common sense should have told me to make a stand, call his bluff. But his eyes told me the gun in my side wasn't any bluff, it would mean a sure shot in the kidney.

He said gently, jovially, "Oh, now, just one last nightcap." Then the whisper: "Keep your hands in sight. If you're not foolish you may live. Now walk."

If he had pushed me I might have made my play. But he was smart, waited for me to walk, then moved with me, like we were a couple of clowns. There wasn't a person in sight on the dimly lit street as we headed toward Second Ave. Then his left hand neatly slid inside my coat while his gun, feeling as big and round as a shotgun barrel, pressed into my kidney and he took my gun from the shoulder holster. He didn't try to pocket the gun, merely pushed it up his sleeve and kept walking with his arm around my shoulder.

I was still frightened, but mostly I was burning with shame. For a cop to have his gun lifted is like wearing a coward's badge. I moved as though I'd be a complete coward, but I was.

We kept walking slowly toward the lights of Second Avenue. I said "You're crazy, Wren, if you think you can get away with this!" And my voice was as shrill as Ma's.

"If I don't you'll never hear about it in the cemetery. Use your head, Winkins. All I want is to have a quiet chat with you."

I told myself that when we reached Second Avenue, or if anybody came along, I'd drop flat and go for his legs. He wouldn't dare pull anything in the light, with people around. But with my gun lost I might as well let him plug me.

We were three stores and a tenement from the avenue. The first store had a for rent sign in the window—it had been a risky gift shop till a few months ago. He suddenly steered me into the doorway, looked around quickly, then opened the door and his gun pushed me in.

Closing the door softly, he told me, "Clasp the back of your neck with both hands, please," and his gun slid up my side to my neck, like a snake. "Blink your eyes to get used to the darkness, then walk toward the back of the store. A false move, even if you should trip, and I'll be forced to kill you. Walk—slowly."

I walked. I felt lost, beaten. He knew his business, no chance for me to kick backward. The pressure of the gun barrel lessened and then from the sound of his steps and the heat of his body, I knew he was walking an arm's length back of me.

The store was empty. There was an open doorway we were nearing. Wren said, "Walk straight through the center of the opening, turn slowly—when I tell you."

We walked into what must have been a tiny supply room.

There wasn't room for the two of us. Wren said, "Turn around and sit on the chair—with your hands in sight. This is the best place I could find for an undisturbed talk. Man's confidence in locks is touching, even in a simple spring lock on a store door."

"I sat down as Wren leaned against the doorway, the light flitting his glasses a weird smoky look. He was wearing pigskin gloves and the pistol in his hand had a bulky silencer—which was why it had felt big as a shotgun in my back. He said, 'I'm sorry to pull a gun on you, and all this business—peculiar. We may part as friends. I hope so, sincerely. I hope that. Killing is a terrible thing, an idiotic gesture that—'

The lightness within me suddenly shot up to my mouth; I had to talk. "You're not going to kill me!" I said, my voice still high. "I reported my visit to your office, if I'm found dead you'll be number one on the suspect parade!" I sounded hysterical.

"Don't raise your voice," he said, holding my gun in his left hand as he pocketed his own, then switched my gun to his right hand. The sight of my own rod made me snap out of it. No matter what happened I had to get my gun back. Wren said, "As for any report, I must doubt that. You are young and cocksure, out to make a name. Very commendable too. After you left, the one thing that remained in my mind was your saying you were working on your own time. I figure you for a glory hunter, a lone hand. Otherwise you would have visited me with your partner. As you see, I have some small knowledge of police work."

JUST COINCIDENCE

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Everyone concerned says it's merely coincidence that the star of the CBS-TV "Schlitz Playhouse" program this Friday will be actress Jacqueline Beer.

Bids Taken on Airbase Shop

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—A North Little Rock firm, Peterson, Garbi & Joseph Inc., was the apparent low bidder Tuesday at $105,000 on construction of an auto maintenance shop at the Little Rock Air Force Base.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Little Rock district office had estimated the cost at $110,467.

The office said it will open bids the second week in April on water demineralization equipment for the Blytheville Air Force Base and on installation of 5,000 feet of lawn watering pipe at the Fort Smith National Cemetery.

Pat Suzuki Wants No Part of Rat Race

BY DOC QUIGG, United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—The "big time" has been croaking a fat finger at Miss Pat Suzuki for some months now, with approving nods from such knowledgeable hoddads as Bing Crosby, but she just snorts her porky face and says: "I don't want to join the rat race yet."

Vicious is a word to keep leathered to earth until you meet Miss Suzuki. Then you can turn it loose and let it orbit in its glory.

Miss Suzuki is a tiny lady with a lower-the-boom voice, a brassy, husky, resounding instrument that can range from pop tunes to light opera. If you ask her to describe her voice, she wiggles her toes and says: "A cross between Shirley Temple and Lawrence Tibbett."

Stands Only 4-11

The twiggling is no joke. In her hotel room Miss Suzuki likes to let her feet feel free. Her total effect is doll like, since she is only 4-11, weighs 100 pounds and wears her hair in an astounding bushy ponytail. At the end of a week's appearance here on the highly Jack Paar TV show, she flopped onto her hotel bed, lay on the back of her neck, curled her feet high against the wallpaper, and exulted:

"I'm going home to Seattle! It's pay!"

Paar had asked her to stay in. She declined.

California born, daughter of a farmer named Chiyokazu Suzuki, she began singing professionally only two and a half years ago. Before that, "It was sort of neck and neck" between singing and art.

She still paints. She still paints—water colors and black and white but refuses to have an exhibition.

Bing Crosby heard her sing last summer and was sold. He has written the notes for her New York record album, her first recording. He comes right out and says: "Great bet for the big time. I really mean that."

But Pat seems content with Seattle. She admits, though, that eventually she'd like to do Broadway musicals.
